

Conrad Turley

Director,
International Tax
Practice, KPMG China

*conrad.turley@
kpmg.com*

Background

Conrad Turley is a director in KPMG China's international tax practice. Now based in Beijing, Conrad has previously worked for the European Commission Tax Directorate in Brussels, as well as for KPMG in Ireland, the Netherlands and Hong Kong.

Experiences

Clients served by Conrad cover a range of sectors, among them private equity, technology and manufacturing and financial services.

Conrad has authored numerous publications for KPMG and has contributed frequently to international tax and finance journals. He is also the principal author of the book: A New Dawn for the International Tax System: Evolution from past to future and what role will China play?. Many of his articles and a section of the book deal with Chinese IP tax management issues and digital economy.

Conrad has presented extensively on international tax and digital economy matters to clients and trade associations, and provided assistance to the Chinese tax authorities and policymakers on these topics. He also lectures on international tax and digital economy tax at Renmin University of China in Beijing and University of Lausanne in Switzerland.